South Canterbury District Health Board Suicide Postvention Plan 2015-2017

*‘Responding to suicide in South
Canterbury: A multiagency approach’*

Approved by Ministry of Health 5 June 2015

Introduction

This document sets out a pathway to plan a response in the community following a suspected suicide in South Canterbury. It is designed as a guide for agencies to follow to provide a coordinated approach in supporting families, friends and the community after a suicide has occurred.

This document sits under the work stream of the South Canterbury Suicide Prevention Action Plan 2013-2016¹, which aligns to the New Zealand Suicide Prevention Strategy (2006-2016)² and focuses on:

- Reducing the rate of suicide and suicidal behaviour
- Promoting mental health and wellbeing, and reducing mental health problems
- Improving the care of people who are experiencing mental disorders associated with suicidal behaviours
- Improving the care of people who make non-fatal suicide attempts
- Supporting families/whānau, friends and others affected by suicide or suicide attempt.

Why is a community response to suicide needed?

When a suicide occurs it can have a distressing impact upon those directly bereaved and upon others in the wider community (neighbours, colleagues, schoolmates). Those affected try to understand what has happened and concerns can quickly build in the community. Sometimes, others in the community may also attempt or complete suicide (referred to as a suicide contagion). This can occur when the original suicide influences others through imitation; glorification of the person who has died; sensationalism of their death; and the presence of a highly charged emotional atmosphere. Those who are already considered vulnerable in the community may be influenced simply by hearing about other suicides (i.e., exposed to a suicide or suicide attempt). In the context of further suicides or attempts, interagency cooperation and coordination is essential³.

Principles of a postvention response

The postvention response will be:

- guided by best practice on managing suicide risk and risk of contagion/clusters
- resourced based on a standardised assessment of risk of contagion/clusters
- led by local organisational/sector managers
- informed by the knowledge and expertise of frontline staff working with people at risk
- consistent, coordinated and transparent
- used in conjunction with the tool kit, for district health boards, developed by the Ministry of Health, containing guidance on preventing suicide and responding to suicide clusters or contagion⁴.

Scope of postvention response

NB: The postvention response is not the immediate or acute response. There will be actions undertaken in parallel to this process i.e. Police investigation, Victim Support visit, Spiritual/cultural practices etc.

The postvention response will:

- ensure initial screening occurs for those individuals who are at immediate risk and ensure supports are in place
- provide an interagency response to identify those individuals in the wider community who are vulnerable and at increased risk
- identify community needs and coordinate the provision of training and information to community key stakeholders
- include the Community Postvention Response Service⁵ in the event of a potential cluster/cluster, as required
- promote the healthy recovery of an affected community, mitigating future risk for example anniversary dates of completed suicides
- involve coordinating with Victim Support to help ensure that the bereaved have the support they require in a timely and culturally appropriate way
- identify barriers and gaps in service provision⁶.

South Canterbury agencies recognise the importance of undertaking the most appropriate action to minimise risk to the community. As such, two responses have been developed, complex and non-complex, to guide the local response. The following outlines how and by who the level of response is decided.

- The Postvention Multiagency Team

The Postvention Multiagency Team is responsible for the Postvention response and determining the level of the response required – complex or non-complex (please see flowchart: Phase 1). There are one or two representatives for each of the following sectors: Health, Social Development, Justice and Education on the Postvention Multiagency Team. The representatives aligned to this team have access to or can approve appropriate resources to meet the aims of the required response within their respective sectors.

- Involvement of the wider community

If it is a complex response the Multiagency Team members will work with others in their sectors to identify who is impacted by the death and potentially at risk. The practitioner (or other nominated person) who has the most contact with the person will then follow up. For example if a young person involved with ICAMHS, was identified at risk, then the Health representative, from the Multiagency Team, would work with the ICAMHS manager to ensure the young person is followed up by their case manager.

⁵ The Community Postvention Response Service (CPRS) is a Ministry of Health funded service run by CASA (Clinical Advisory Services Aotearoa). CPRS assists communities experiencing suicidal contagion or suicide clusters. The Service can help a community assess if there is a cluster emerging or occurring in the community and how best to respond to the situation.

⁶ <http://www.casa.org.nz/funded-programmes/community-postvention-response>

- Cluster Management

The Postvention Multiagency Team treats any death where there is considerable community interest and all youth deaths, as complex (other deaths may also be considered complex depending on the situation). We seek advice from CASA, and all activities undertaken (e.g. follow up of those impacted) are designed to minimise the risk of other suicides, potential cluster or contagion.

Storage of information

Information, correspondence and documentation will be stored in a secure electronic file by the Postvention Coordinator and deleted after two years. The information will be kept for the two year timeframe for the purpose of monitoring and intervening in potential clusters. Information will only be released to those as identified in the Multiagency Postvention Team, Terms of Reference. All identified personnel will abide by their respective organisations' guidelines on privacy and information disclosure.

Review of this Plan

This Plan is not static. It will be reviewed six months after its implementation and then annually. Additionally each postvention response will be reviewed to see what worked well and what could be improved.

The Process

The process outlined below illustrates how identified community agencies will respond to suspected suicides.

As mentioned above some cases will be assessed as a straight forward scenario with limited intervention required (non-complex). In other cases where there is increased risk and a more comprehensive response will be required (complex).

POSTVENTION PROCESS

Appendix 1: Definitions used in this document

Adult

For the purposes of this document an adult is an individual aged over 24 years (Ministry of Youth Development)

Attempted suicide

Attempted suicide is a potentially self-injurious act intended to end one's life but does not result in death. Suicidal ideation is thinking about or engaging in suicidal behaviour, either with or without a suicide plan. NB: While most people who experience suicide ideation do not complete suicide, some do make attempts on their own life (Department of Communities, 2010).

Circles of Vulnerability

A screening model used to identify individuals who may be potentially more at risk of suicide contagion than others. The model advocates screening those who are in geographical and psychosocial proximity to the deceased and general population at risk (CASA).

Postvention

Suicide postvention refers to community-based support after a suicide that aims to reduce the negative impact of the death and to reduce the potential for further suicidal behaviours. The key objectives of postvention initiatives are to:

- maximise resilience
- utilise coping strategies; and
- establish structures and networks to deal with the suicide and its impact (Ministry of Health).

Suicide clusters

Suicide clusters are broadly defined as the occurrence in time of usually three or more suicides, greater than the number of suicides which would be expected on the basis of statistical prediction. Clusters are more common amongst young people and may account for 1-13 percent of youth suicides. Clusters often occur within institutions or small communities, including rural and indigenous communities (Ministry of Health).

Suicide contagion

It has been proposed that suicide clusters may be due to "contagion", or the process where one person's suicide influences another person to engage in suicidal behaviour. The mechanisms for contagion are not fully understood. Contagion may be linked to an expression of grief after experiencing the suicide of another or an attempt to deal with a range of emotions or events through imitation. It may also be indication of a desire to be recognised, for identity, or to be part of a group, or because of the suggestive power of exposure to a particular method. There are demonstrated links between the way in which suicide is reported in the media and the occurrence of further suicidal acts (Centre for Policy Health, University of Melbourne, 2012).

Suicide

Suicide is any act of self-injury which is intended to end one's life and which the person dies (Department of Communities, 2010).

Self-harm

Self-harm is the deliberate act of harming one's body without the intention to die (Department of Communities, 2010).

Young person

For the purposes of this document a young person is an individual aged 12 to 24 years inclusive (Ministry of Youth Development).

- Provide information to the Postvention Coordinator for summary at the meeting/teleconference

- Collectively discuss event utilising knowledge of the areas represented and confirm if a postvention response is required.
- If a complex postvention response is required attend meeting to:
 - Identify gaps in information
 - Determine urgency and level of response
 - Confirm number of agencies required to participate in a response
 - Decide on actions required
 - Identify lead agency
 - Agree on a timeframe for the postvention activity to conclude.
- Liaise with staff, working with those at risk, within own agency/sector to gather any further information. This information to be feedback to postvention coordinator.
- Agree on a media spokesperson to provide appropriate information to the media and respond to requests as required. This spokesperson will have experience in communicating with the media on sensitive issues. NB: Individual agencies will also have their own spokespeople who will comment as and when required.
- Instruct the Postvention Coordinator to advise identified senior leaders from Community Public Health and South Canterbury District Health Board of intended approach and any key risks or issues. NB: Senior leaders may provide guidance or instruction to group if required.
- Instruct the Postvention Coordinator to seek guidance from CASA (Community Postvention Response Service), on behalf of Postvention Multiagency Team, if required.

It is NOT the function of the Multiagency Postvention Team to:

- Provide a traumatic emergency response.

- Staff members from all sectors work within their scope of practice/employment agreement.

Postvention Lead agency

Function

The lead agency will be identified by the PVMAT (Postvention Multiagency Team) after activation criteria is deemed to be met. The lead agency is likely to be determined based on connections with people most at risk but may also depend on availability.

The lead agency will take leadership and coordinate the postvention process and report back to the PVMAT.

The roles and responsibilities included below are not meant to be prescriptive rather to represent the range of tasks that may be undertaken. Due to the complexity of each situation there is a high need for flexibility and capacity for several tasks to occur simultaneously. Therefore, careful and thorough organisation by the Postvention Coordinator is essential to ensure a robust postvention process.

Roles and responsibilities

Facilitate a meeting of other key stakeholders*. At this meeting:

- 'circles of vulnerability' will be applied to identify individuals at risk of serious and/or imminent harm to their life or health
- individualised plans for follow up, of those identified will be made
- individuals/agencies will be designated to make contact with and ensure appropriate support is in place for all those named. Note: the designated individuals/agencies will report back to the lead agency to ensure all plans have been actioned
- significant dates will be identified (e.g. birthdays of deceased and anniversaries of deaths) for the following 12 months. Note: the Postvention Coordinator is tasked with monitoring of situation at those times and contacting original lead agency with regard to any further action required.

The lead agency will also:
